LIQUOR CONTROL BOARD REDUCE OWN SALARIES

R. J. Dinning, chairman of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, and other higher salaried members of the Board have taken a voluntary reduction in salary, it was learned on Saturday.

It was authoritatively stated that Mr. Dinning had taken a reduction of from $9,000 a year to between $5,000 and $6,000.

It was also learned that some higher salaried officials in other branches had taken voluntary reductions.

Asked to comment on this, Premier Aberhart expressed his appreciation of the fact that Mr. Dinning had voluntarily come forward with his offer.

"I appreciate Mr. Dinning more every day," he said.

Gas Tax Car Levies Over $35,000,000

An amazing sum has been contributed to the revenue of this province since the passing of automobile and collecting of a gas tax were brought into effect, according to officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

The combined total of these returns amounted to $34,879,000 without taking into account the figures for 1935 which will boost the aggregate considerably.

Latest official figures show that since 1906 when car licenses were first introduced, the province has taken in $20,995,000 from that source, in the first year revenue amounted to $125, but it reached $1,673,000 in 1934. The record year was 1930 when collections amounted to close to $2,000,000.

Steady jumps have been made in the gasoline tax with the result that it now surmounts car licenses as a revenue producer.

There was a yield of $185,000 the first year the gasoline tax went into operation, which was 1922, but by 1934 this had shot to $2,100,000, establishing the peak in a 12 year period.

Provincial tax collectors, it is contended, have at last reached the stage where the law of diminishing returns will operate, it is felt. It was believed that the final straw was the cent increase in the tax this year.

In three years the average tax on gasoline in Canada has increased by approximately 30 per cent, but in the same period the total amount collected has increased by only 16.83 per cent.

It is evident, therefore, and has been pointed out by motor club officials, that the returns do not keep pace with the rate of increase in the tax. But governments still fail to realize the wisdom of reducing the tax and getting larger returns that way through an increased volume of gasoline sales.

Premier Declares To Prohibit Liquor Advt.

Consideration is being given by the provincial government to the elimination of all liquor advertising in this province, Premier William Aberhart declared on Friday.

It was learned that if the government does take this action, it might be as from Nov. 1st.

Asked to comment on the reason for the government considering this action, the Premier said, "It will eliminate waste and will be in the public good. People who want liquor know that the stores exist and they can get it if they desire."

"In view of the fact that you are contemplating raising liquor prices do you think that eliminating advertising will reduce sales?" he was asked.

"No, I do not think so," he replied. "Elimination of advertising can be carried out under terms of the Liquor Act."

Although Alberta newspapers will be affected, advertisements can still be carried in newspapers and periodicals published outside Alberta and widely circulated in this province.

PUBLICITY COMMISSION BRANCH IS CLOSED

Abolition of the provincial publicity commissioner's branch as from November 1st has been decided by the government and Colin G. Groff, publicity commissioner, has been informed, according to Premier William Aberhart.

The Premier declared that the government felt that such work as was carried on by the publicity branch could be done through the trade and industry department.

Mr. Groff has also been acting as publicity commissioner. The Premier said that no appointment would be made to this post, but that during the season additional clerical help might be added.

Royal Wedding Nov. 6 Will See Court Dress

Contrary to previous reports, military uniforms and court dress will be required for the wedding of the Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott, it is officially announced. The ceremony is to take place Nov. 6th in the chapel of Buckingham Palace.

It was announced earlier all elaborate ceremony would be dispensed with, because of the mourning for the recent death of the Duke of Buecluch.

The Duke of Gloucester, third son of His Majesty the King, will wear the uniform of captain of the 10th Royal Hussars.

Lady Alice will go from her residence on Grosvenor Place to Buckingham Palace in a glass-covered coach drawn by four bays.

After the ceremony the royal couple will proceed to St. Pancras station in an open, four-horse coach, if the permits. They will be escorted by a detachment of cavalry.

Hallowe'en Party by Young People's Union

The Y.P.U. held a rally in the form of a Hallowe'en party at King's Park, Fabyan, on Friday evening last. The main feature of the gathering was the treasure hunt sponsored by Ken Trott. Later refreshments were served by the committee. During the evening a presentation was made to Miss V. Vail, who is planning to leave town shortly. A singing-up by all present made a fitting wind-up to what proved a very pleasant outing.

Final Standing of Parties at Ottawa

"No. I do not think so," he replied. "Elimination of advertising can be carried out under terms of the Liquor Act."

Although Alberta newspapers will be affected, advertisements can still be carried in newspapers and periodicals published outside Alberta and widely circulated in this province.

Making inspections for the Farm Loan Board, Mr. Lees of Amlak, has been working in this district for the past week.

JOY WATER GETS NICKLE RAISE

Liquor prices throughout Alberta will be raised as from Nov. 1. It was learned in well-informed circles on Saturday. Although the necessary order-in-council has not been passed, the government has made its decision and will ratify it in the immediate future.

The government plan is not to make any appreciable raise, but to add a few cents on.

For instance, five cents will be added to a case of half a dozen beer and a jug of hard liquor at $1.85.

If "The largest Buffalo Park in the World" is to relieve the acknowledgment and advertising consistent with its greatness, it is necessary that the people of its surrounding district at least enter into the co-operation necessary to the public pronouncement as to its merits.

The citizens of Wainwright and district have the opportunity on Thursday evening of this week of taking dinner at 7.30 p.m. with representatives of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association. These gentlemen to the number of about ten, including speakers and song-leaders are donating their time, talent and money to personally contact the folks of the Wainwright district in the interests of promoting our local features for the attraction of tourists and immeasurably to the benefit of the folks here who know how to extend hospitality in the real Wainwright manner.

Locally we are too prone to accept the location of the Buffalo Park here as a matter of course, rather than as a FEATURE.

It is a well-known fact that of all the world-travelled folks that have taken valuable time from their itinerary to visit this park, that one has never heard to complain that the distance travelled or the time spent has not been worth while, in fact, in all cases unsolicited testimony wonders why the Buffalo Park is not featured in Dominion Park advertising, both by folder and map.

It is the intention of the Alberta Motor Association to produce and place in their various central offices, a large map showing the various highways between Wainwright and Edmonton; and at an early date, on through Jasper to the coast by the shortest and lowest grade Canadian highway, with only a few lower-cost miles to construct to make this national project an actuality.

The Alberta Motor Association, Edmonton branch are very definitely pressing for this and we can all help and do our duty from a local, provincial and national standpoint by getting together, even were it for the minimum reason of OUR OWN INTERESTS.

The tickets are now being sold for Thursday's luncheon at 50 cents each. As the seating capacity is limited to 100 in the Wainwright Hotel dining room for this get-together, it is imperative that you get your accommodation early. This is not an appeal. It is simply bringing to the public notice an opportunity that presents itself to get out and help yourself. It will take a lot of expenditures in roads and other public features in this northern part of the province to bring us back at least a part of the money we have paid out through taxes and motor licenses and gasoline contributions to modernize other parts of the Province while we in Wainwright have lagged behind.

Famous "Cleopatra" Film Elite Theatre

Redundant with magnificent settings, and glittering costumes, the famous Paramount romantic drama "Cleopatra" which is the latest of the Cecil B. DeMille spectacular motion pictures will show on Friday and Saturday only of this week at the Elite.

The producer has here contrived a talkie with many of the influences of Shakespeare and G. B. Shaw and yet at the same time is filled with modern, easy-going dialogue.

Mark Anthony sent to bring back the voluptuous queen, also becomes enamoured of her wiles, and casts in his lot with her country, later committing suicide when Cleopatra poisons herself in chagrin.

No Broadcast Of Duke's Wedding Now

The Canadian Radio Commission announced Saturday that it had received word from the British Broadcasting Corporation that arrangements to broadcast the wedding ceremony next Wednesday of the Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott had been cancelled due to the death of the bride's father.

Alberta S.C. Gov't. Get Financial Expert

The provincial government has taken another step toward making the way clear for the introduction of its new economic scheme by having Robert J. Magor, noted Montreal actuary and engineer, to come to Edmonton and advise the Cabinet of the best methods and means of "cleaning up the financial situation left by the former Government," to quote Premier William Aberhart's own words.

Mr. Magor recently finished the job of setting the Commission Government of Newfoundland well on its way to recovery by his survey of the situation there and his advice on how to meet it.

It is Premier Aberhart's desire to get the financial situation as it is at his coming into power so simplified and straight that there may be nothing in the way of his introducing the new Social Credit system.

Shower for Town Bride of Next Week

Complimenting Miss Ada Wiley, a bride of next week, Mrs. Barney Buckle and Mrs. R. Ott, entertained at a kitchen shower at the home of the former lady on Friday evening last.

The evening was spent in games and contests by a large number of the younger set, Mrs. E. Ganderon and Mrs. W. Cowley being the prize-winners of the contests "Found in the kitchen." After lunch the future bride unwrapped the many gifts which were deftly concealed in a "three-tiered wedding cake," the gathering dispersing after a hearty singing of "For she's a jolly good fellow."

Mr. and Mrs. H. Clifton and their daughter Helen journeyed to the city last week-end by car.

PROV. HEALTH DEPT. GETS INSURANCE BRANCH

Transfer of the insurance and fire commissioner's branch from the treasury to the provincial health department has been made by the provincial government, it was learned Friday. The change is effective from October 21st.

Henry Brace is head of the branch, holding the dual posts of superintendent of insurance and fire commissioner for the province. There are 10 employees in this branch.

Some days ago, Premier Aberhart stated that plans to reorganize the insurance branch were under consideration, some of the work overlapping with that of the provincial secretary's branch.

Chinese Speaker at St. Thomas A.Y.P.A.

St. Thomas' A.Y.P.A. were particularly fortunate on Monday evening last week, in having Mr. Harry Pon, one of our local Chinese, as guest speaker. The meeting was held at the Victoria, and Mr. Pon was introduced by Mr. Eldon Rudd, Convenor for Edification.

Harry, who was born in China, came to Canada as a young boy and received his education at Chas. Sedgewick and finally at Vancouver. In 1923 Harry revisited his home in China. Harry is very proud of his home land, and the fact that it is equally as modern as Canada. Beautiful pictures were shown of the old days (as Harry called them) old customs, etc., and also modern pictures of aeroplanes, modern dress, theatre stars. Our girls were particularly interested in the hair-dressing of the Chinese girls, but Harry proudly displayed pictures showing the latest styles of permanent waves, which questioned about the binding of the girls' feet. Harry answered, "Thirty years ago, not now, that's old-fashioned." Festivals and customs came in for some discussion and Harry was asked if they believe in Santa Claus. He laughingly answered yes, he had been Santa Claus, as his father had put him down the chimney to clean the soot. The evening was a very enjoyable one and Harry made us all eager to hear more of his native land.

At the close Miss Kathleen Hart, the president, thanked Mr. Pon for his very interesting talk. For the remainder of the evening Harry was kept busy writing, in Chinese, the names of the members present.

Are You on the Town's Voter's List?

"Am I on the municipal voters' list for the Town elections early in the year?" is a question which every resident of Wainwright who is of voting age should be asking themselves.

In the case of registered owners of property on the tax roll this is easily answered for the names of all such persons are automatically included each year in the voters' lists, but in the case of a wife, husband, father, mother, son, or daughter of such assessed owner, as well as in the case of a person actually renting an assessed parcel, application must be made to the town clerk to have their name placed upon the list of voters on or before the last day of October.

All persons interested, who desire to exercise their franchise at the town elections early in the year, should find out before the closing time of the town office on Thursday (tomorrow) evening as to their eligibility and the inclusion of their names if so eligible.

Eight-year-old Run Over By Wagon Causing Death

Carl Edward Farnsworth, aged eight years, accidentally met his death on Tuesday last, while riding home from a neighbor's place in a wagon driven by Mr. Ringage.

The child was standing in the wagon in which there was also several of his brothers as well as a barrel of water. He lost his balance and was thrown from the wagon, the hind wheel striking him on the back of the head near the neck.

The boys riding in the wagon called to Mr. Farnsworth, the father, who picked up the injured lad and carried him to the house, but life was then extinct. Dr. Gordon Maynes was called, and upon arrival he having learned all the circumstances decided that an inquest was not necessary, the death being purely accidental.

The funeral was held at the Wainwright cemetery on Thursday last, the Rev. T. E. Armstrong officiating and the arrangements being in the hands of McLeod's parlors.

He leaves to mourn besides his parents a number of brothers and sisters and other relatives, to all of whom The Star extends the sympathies of a large number of friends and acquaintances.

NEW SEED FAIR POLICY INAUGURATED

Instituting a new policy calculated to enlarge the scope of the annual Alberta provincial seed fair, Hon. W. N. Chant, minister of agriculture, has announced that the seed fair will now be reorganized to provide three district fairs for the province, instead of a central fair at one point only. These three fairs, it has been decided, will be held at Lethbridge, Calgary and Grande Prairie.

A provincial championship in each class will, however, be provided for, by arranging that the first prize winners at each of the district fairs will be permitted to compete in a championship contest at the district fair last to be held, which this year will be at Calgary.

As prizes for the championship classes, the first prize monies awarded in each class will be duplicated.

WASHINGTON distance
Many years ago someone called Washington "the city of magnificent distances," and the appellation has stuck. I was again reminded of it last week, when on a trip to the Nation's capital I had to call at a dozen or more Federal offices.

Washington is more like the great European cities than any other American municipality. Its growth has been horizontal instead of vertical. About the tallest building in the city is the National Press Club, and that is only 13 stories. Most of the Government buildings are under six stories high.

It is not at all uncommon to have to travel three or four miles, or farther, to get from one Government building to another, and in the course of a day around Federal offices the visitor has to walk along literally miles of corridors.

It occurred to me that one of the reasons why Government business takes so long to transact may be the time and energy wasted in getting from one office to another. Washington is not geared up to speed and efficiency.

BEAUTY in marble
Major L'Enfant, the brilliant Frenchman who planned the Federal city, conceived it as the most beautiful city in the world. It seems more beautiful every time I visit it—and I've known Washington since 1881. In another fifty years there will be nothing to compare with it for beauty.

The Supreme Court moved into the most beautiful of all Washington buildings last week. It is built all of white marble. Outside, Vermont marble, corridors of Alabama marble, floors of Italian, Spanish and African marble.

Everything about the building is freshly new and gleaming, except the Justices' chairs. They sit in the old comfortable chairs they are accustomed to. When it was proposed to buy a new chair for Justice Cardozo, he replied that the old chair that was good enough for Justice Holmes for 20 years was good enough for him.

TENANTS everywhere
In spite of the multitude of Government buildings, there isn't room for all the new Federal offices. Uncle Sam is the biggest tenant in Washington. After taking all the available space in town, public offices are spreading out into hotels, apartments and private houses.

Hambling Round New York

Mayor La Guardia's campaign against noise in the city started October 1st. No auto horns in the city after eleven p.m.—and tickets if they are caught. There's hope and a good deal of skepticism about the anti-noise campaign, and in time the commission hopes to get around to the biggest noise-makers—the electric trains and trolley cars.

On your radio you may hear dance orchestras from many of New York's bright spots, but you'll never hear the most famous songs of entertainers to the sophisticated such as Dwight Dillard. They're on the Radio Commission's "banned list."

Among the families and families of Broadway, Al Woods' family rank high. According to Al he's plagued with ghosts, and every time he forgets something it's Warburton's fault. Washington, it seems, is a place where that comes down and envelopes Al. And when Warburton isn't busy befogging Al, he goes back where he came from to bother London.

The hush-hush school of dance music seems to be on its way if we may judge by Don Richards' Hotel Montclair orchestra which will feature six violins and a harp. Angelic? Since Dr. Alexis Carrel made the statement that everyone is capable of mental telepathy to some degree, a favorite parlor stunt of guessing at cards drawn from a pack threatens to silence many a good party.

Crowds from out of town at the Baer-Louis fight—and one Federal worker from Washington who quotes the census figures of the United States as being a pack of lies. A sufficient excuse for coming to New York for a rest.

Yeh, man; Harlem went wild after the Joe Louis victory, but three hundred extra cops made only three arrests, though one jubilant Negro took his fun rolling on the street in front of approaching automobiles, rolling out of the way in the nick of time. At midnight the report was—still alive.

A CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR ALL THE YEAR

There is no such thing as a poor Christmas present. Some are just better than others. Any gift offered out of a spirit of love and friendship carries a sentiment not to be discarded lightly.

All gifts, however, do not bespeak this wish as well as they might. Household gifts lack the desirable personal touch—yet purely personal presents often wear out or change style so quickly that the giving seems an ill-chosen waste. The perfect gift not only gives instant pleasure, but brings a lasting charm to the receiver many, many times.

Pets make excellent gifts. Canaries, particularly, touch a responsive cord in any woman's heart. They need little care: a bit of water some bird-food and such tiny luxuries as will make life more pleasant for them. And in return they

THE WEST IMPLATES MORE AMENDMENTS

The two-party political system under which the nation had grown from its earliest days was threatened in 1892, when the so-called Populist movement, originating in the wheat-growing states, swept the Western country and parts of the South. This new "People's" Party elected many members of Congress, and its candidate for President, General James B. Weaver, received 22 electoral votes. This had a profound effect upon the Constitution of the United States, for the demands for Constitutional changes made by so large a group of voters could not be ignored.

One of those demands was the income tax, which, as has been pointed out, was later adopted.

Another demand of the People's Party was for a change in the Constitutional method of electing United States Senators; they should be chosen by direct popular vote instead of by state legislatures.

The new states that had been carved out of the public domain had little of the tradition of state independence which prevailed in the older East. They were creatures of the Federal Government, with no previous independent existence. To the people of the West, there was nothing especially sacred in the original plan of the Constitution, which regarded the State Governments, as represented in their legislatures, as somewhat superior to the people.

The West had no especial reverence for the original plan of the Constitution, which regarded the State Governments, as represented in their legislatures, as somewhat superior to the people. The West had no especial reverence for the original plan of the Constitution, which regarded the State Governments, as represented in their legislatures, as somewhat superior to the people.

Another of the demands made by the People's Party for a Constitutional change was equal suffrage rights for women.

The Democratic Party, in 1890, captured the People's Party by adopting most of its tenets. These, therefore, became partisan political issues, so it was not until the Democratic Party had obtained control of Congress that these People's Party amendments to the Constitution could be submitted to the states for ratification.

Like the income tax amendment, it took 20 years and more of public discussion to bring about the 17th amendment, for direct election of Senators, which was ratified in 1913.

The 19th amendment, giving nationwide suffrage to women, in 1920. Prior to 1920 women had been granted the right to vote in 22 states, beginning with Wyoming. This was another great popular movement, which, like Prohibition, had its origin in the East but its strength in the West.

When the United States entered the World War the majority of the States had already voted themselves dry. As a war-time emergency measure Congress enacted a temporary national prohibition act. The opportunity was seized upon for the submission of a Constitutional amendment for the perpetuation of national prohibition. This, the 18th amendment, was ratified in 1919.

After 14 years of unsuccessful efforts to enforce prohibition, this 18th amendment was repealed by the 21st amendment, ratified in 1933. This is the only instance of a Constitutional amendment being repealed by another amendment.

It has been pointed out that Supreme Court decisions have rarely resulted directly or indirectly in amendments to the Constitution. One Supreme Court decision, however, holding a law of Congress unconstitutional, brought about the submission of an amendment which has been awaiting ratification for 11 years. It would prohibit interstate commerce in the products of child labor.

The 66th Congress enacted a law which was intended to prevent the exploitation of children in industry, but before its provisions became effective the Supreme Court held that this was an invasion of the rights of the states and therefore beyond the power of Congress.

The 68th Congress, in 1924, submitted an amendment removing that restriction upon Congressional authority. Only 21 of the 48 states have as yet ratified the child labor amendment, which must be ratified by 36 states before it becomes a part of the Constitution.

It has been demonstrated that potatoes are severely injured by cracking and bruising when poured from a basket into a sack from a height of 30 inches. The injury is slight from a height of 12 inches. Potatoes, therefore, should be rolled or poured carefully into the bags.

The Woman's Angle

A new type carpet sweeper is on display at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago. It has a joint in the handle to simplify sweeping under the bureau and other furniture. The "knee-action" avoids the necessity of bending over in sweeping.

Another convenience is an electric cord that is fastened to the wall plug with a ball and socket joint, letting the cord turn perfectly freely without knotting or kinking.

A Sunday night for notables in Cleveland with a really distinguished gathering recently, featured "the best baked beans west of Boston Common" and "you never put fork to such cooked beef hash." And that's the Sunday supper of a lovely hostess well known in Paris, London and New York.

A question of etiquette recently called to my attention asked whether it was a breach to thank a waiter for service. Authorities, and your own common sense of kindness tell us it is never wrong to say thank you for any personal service, and rudeness to a servant, on the other hand, is about the worst of offenses. It isn't necessary, of course, to thank a servant for dishes passed at the table.

And they're even showing an air-conditioned bed—with a simple little de-humidifier that works even though all your outside windows are open.

Among the well dressed in Hollywood, Dolores Del Rio seems to rate "I'm excited to death about the Renaissance designs so widely discussed just now," she says. And that goes for the deep, rich colors and the jewelled belts and jewelry trimmings, too.

Jean Harlow says, "I hate clothes and I detest shopping." Whenever she can, she wears sleeveless tennis dresses or shorts.

A connoisseur, Thyra Samter Winslow, says: make your Welsh rarebits with two kinds of cheese, Cheddar and Edam or Cheddar and Swiss mustard, Worcestershire sauce, flour and stale beer.

"MYSTERIOUS MR. SABIN"

(by E. Phillips Oppenheim)

When Lord Wolfenden saw, in the supper-room of the Milan Restaurant, a beautiful woman, and became acquainted with her by seeing the life of her elderly companion, (the mysterious Mr. Sabin), as they leave the restaurant he little knew the web of intrigue this which he was entering. It was impossible not to love the unknown lady, and it seemed equally impossible to marry her when her identity became known to him; but Mr. Oppenheim can be depended upon to give his plots that turn which is as admirable as it is unexpected, and this is one of the best of his many good and exciting books.

This Week in Washington

Three liveliest questions in Washington:

1. What is the Supreme Court going to do about the four New Deal laws, upon the constitutionality of which it will shortly have to pass?
2. How effective will the American neutrality policy be in keeping us out of trouble in the European war?

3. Can the potato control law be enforced, and if so what will be its political effect?

The first constitutional question which the Supreme Court will pass on its glittering new white marble temple of justice is on the AAA. That is, on the Court's docket, a test case raised by a New England cotton mill, challenging the right of Congress to impose a processing tax on cotton. The real question is not the right to tax but the right to benefit payments to the cotton growers, rather than turn the money into the Government's general revenue. Washington betters are offering odds that the Court will throw the processing tax out of the window.

Also Before Court
The other three questions, on which petitions for review are pending before the Court, concern the constitutionality of the Bankhead cotton control law, the right of the Federal Government to take property by condemnation proceedings for housing and land-clearance programs, and the validity of the TVA's plan for selling electricity to municipalities.

Congress will meet again on January 3rd, and in the intervening three months it is expected that decisions will be handed down which may give the Senators and Representatives a lot of work to do.

War Proclamations

With war between Italy and Ethiopia now an actuality, President Roosevelt has acted under the neutrality resolution with two proclamations. One of these lists all kinds of military supplies and equipment, which Americans are forbidden to supply to either of the belligerents. The other is a solemn warning to all American citizens that if they travel on the ships of either of the nations at war or transact any business with those nations, they do so at their own risk and our Government will not concern itself anything happens to them. Since Ethiopia has no ships this merely means that Americans are warned against traveling on Italian ships.

If the war involves no other nations it is quite possible nothing of serious consequence to the United States will follow these proclamations. But if the League of Nations imposes economic sanctions against Italy, which means that no member of the League may legally carry on any trade in any commodity with that country, a tough question will be put up to the United States.

We are not members of the League, and would not be bound by its action. Undoubtedly great pressure will be brought by industrial and commercial interests, to take advantage of the trade opportunity which would be offered. But if other nations undertake to enforce the League's sanctions by blockading Italian ports, it is easy to imagine a situation existing which might bring the United States smack into a lot of trouble. And don't think the boys of the State Department aren't worried about that contingency. They are.

Potatoes Again

Potatoes are something else again. Secretary Wallace announced the other day that he wasn't going to make any effort to enforce the potato control plan. It wasn't more than 24 hours after that before representatives of the big potato-growing states, chiefly Maine, Idaho and Utah, descended upon the Agricultural Department in a body. They embodied potato farmers demanded to know why they weren't entitled to Government benefits just as much as peanut growers and other agriculturalists, in whose interest the Government has been trying to raise the price of their products.

The liveliest exchange of threats and demands that has been heard for some months resulted. In the end Mr. Wallace said all right, he would do what he could to enforce the potato law, although there was not any money available to do the necessary policing of every potato patch in the nation.

The best informed opinion in Washington is that the promised enforcement will be half-hearted and ineffective and that the potato growers will try to stir up a lot of trouble for Mr. Wallace when Congress meets again.

FOUR CENT TAX IS PAYING FOR ROADS

The state of Nebraska, which claims to be free of debt and to have passed through periods of war and drought without borrowing money, is now maintaining its highway system out of motor vehicle license fees and a four cent "salon gasoline tax, plus the usual Federal aid.

The state government, apart from road building, is supported by a general property tax and it has no income tax or sales tax.

Canadian provinces impose gasoline taxes ranging from six to eight cents and none of them is free from debt.

HYPOTENSION

The human family may be classified in many different ways. With blood pressure as the basis for classification, we would have three groups: average, above average and below average.

High blood pressure receives so much attention that we are apt to overlook hypotension, or low blood pressure which is the more common variant from the average. In general blood pressure of women is lower than that of men, while Orientals are below Europeans and Americans.

The importance and significance of low blood pressure depend upon its cause and the conditions with which it is associated. During an attack of influenza and other germ-caused diseases, the blood-pressure usually falls and it may remain down for some time. This indicates the need for a longer stay in bed for such patients, with sufficient rest during convalescence. Rest is the great healer and restorer.

Tuberculosis and other chronic diseases usually are accompanied by a low blood pressure. This is also true of certain nervous and heart disorders. In such cases, it is obvious that the underlying cause is the important point.

Then there are those whose blood pressure is below average for no apparent reason. Frequently, they are slender, narrow-chested, long-waisted individuals. For them, low pressure is not, in itself, a menace to health. These persons tend to live beyond the average expectancy of life.

While they live longer many of them miss much of the joy of life because of the chronic and persistent sense of weariness that burdens their lives. They may be said to enjoy poor health; they are not ill, but inactive. To do things is an effort, and it is a question whether a longer life, under such conditions, is as desirable as the shorter but more active life of the high blood pressure group.

The treatment of hypotension depends upon what is causing it. In general, such cases should endeavour to maintain their body weight and, by a reasonable amount of exercise, keep the muscles toned up, including the abdominal muscles. Those who suffer no inconvenience need no treatment, but any who tire too easily need help.

HOW THE LIBRARY HELPS OUR TOWN

1. Completes its educational equipment, carrying on and giving permanent value to the work of the schools.
2. Gives the children of all classes a chance to know and love the best in literature. Without a public library such a chance is limited to the very few.
3. Minimizes the sale and reading of vicious literature in the community, thus promoting mental and moral health.
4. Effects a saving in money to every reader in the community. Through the library every reader in the town can secure at a given cost from 100 to 1,000 times the material for reading or study that he could secure by acting individually.
5. Adds to the material value of property. Real estate agents in the suburbs of large cities never fail to advertise the presence of a library. If there be one, as giving added value to the lots or houses they have for sale.
6. Appealing to all classes, sects and degrees of intelligence, it is a strong unifying factor in the life of a town.

SUPPLEMENTARY FEEDS FOR PALL PIGS

Feeding tests conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alberta, indicate clearly that, when fall pigs get 20 skim-milk or butter-milk, some substitute must be provided if fall pig raising is to prove profitable. When milk is not available, 8 pounds of tankage thoroughly mixed in each 100 pounds of grain is to be recommended. A mixed supplement, which has given good results in winter pig feeding at Lacombe, is made up of 50 per cent alfalfa, 25 per cent linseed oil meal and 25 per cent alfalfa meal. When this mixture, fed at the rate of 8 per cent of the grain mixture, was compared with the single supplements fed at the same rate it was found that the mixture gave better results than any one supplement fed alone. Judging from the foregoing results, a mixed supplement more apt to supply the necessary nutrients and mineral matter than a single supplement.

The ordinary home-grown hog feeds, oats and barley, while reasonably high in phosphorus, are low in calcium (lime). Although milk and tankage supply considerable amounts of the mineral matter it is doubtful if they will provide sufficient calcium to ensure the skeleton development keeping pace with the accelerated body growth brought about by the use of these supplements, and unless growth of skeleton and body are properly balanced, proper utilization of feed is not possible.

Pigs grow much more rapidly than any other farm animal, with a weight of about 2 pounds at birth and 200 pounds in six months. As a result, they more readily show the results of mineral deficiency. Spring pigs secure the necessary minerals largely from pastures and from eating the freshly rooted soil. Minerals from these sources are not available for fall litters, fed mainly in dry lots and pens and an adequate mineral ration should be provided.

A simple and cheap mineral mixture, which has been used successfully for a number of years at Lacombe, consists of 76 pounds of slack coal, 20 pounds of salt, 3 pounds of ground limestone and one pound of sulphur. The mixture is fed in boxes, or in separate compartments of the self-feeder, to which the pigs have free access.

Pigs should be forced to go out in the sunshine every nice day during the winter. Pigs deprived of sunlight during the winter months suffer from poor mineral utilization and may develop a condition of "stiffness" which interferes with growth and general thrift.

SESS DECLINE HALTED IN NUMBER OF HORSES

Between 1921 and 1934 the number of horses owned in Canada declined from 3,610,000 to 2,935,000 according to official figures. Today there are not lacking statistics that the decline has ended; that the number slowly is increasing. In fact a census of horses in Manitoba taken this year showed a gain of 1,000 over the figures a year ago, and this tendency is said to be more or less general throughout the Dominion.

The advent of the automobile displaces great numbers of carriage horses, and in the same period the work-horse population fell as tractors were put to work in the great fields of Western Canada and to a smaller degree in the eastern provinces.

Now, however, the horse is "coming back." Low agricultural prices and the necessity for cutting costs on production have brought him back into favor on many farms. There has been also a distinct revival of interest in horse-breeding both for show and domestic purposes.

CHANGES OF SEASON

It's coming the time of year—medium or late autumn with chill nights and hot mid-days—when we must look after attacks of indigestion that the children somehow pick up, from eating everything. We even have to watch our own step, or catch ourselves eating too much when it's cool, and repenting when it turns hot at noon.

The trouble announces itself promptly—that's one good thing. A pain, or distress right over the stomach or bowels—often diarrhoea, and maybe constipation. Sometimes vomiting—and with the kiddies, a flare of temperature. We adults may find ourselves with a chill.

We should study the location of the appendix—right lower quadrant of the abdomen—and, if that is even suspected, don't try to treat it yourself—call the doctor. But, the gross

POULTRY FOR MARKET

To a great extent the ultimate success of the poultry enterprise depends on the manner in which the products are marketed. The discriminating customer will be attracted by the well-fattened and well-dressed chicken or fowl, and will pay a premium in price for appearance as well as quality.

Success in fattening and marketing will depend to a great extent on the operator's knowledge and ability to prepare his product in the most economical and attractive form. Special feeding for ten days to three weeks will greatly improve the quality and pay for the extra feed and labour involved.

Only birds with strong constitutions can stand heavy feeding with limited exercise. Birds that lack vigour seldom make profitable gains in the fattening pens.

A serviceable cage six feet long by twenty-four inches wide, and eighteen inches high, may be made from slats nailed one inch apart, with a galvanized pan beneath the slatted floor for the droppings. Partitions two feet apart will provide compartments two feet square, and will accommodate four or five birds according to size.

To ensure freedom from lice, dust the birds with flour of sulphur and create a good appetite by starving for the first twenty-four hours. On the second day give only slight feed until the third day. Feed enough to thoroughly satisfy at each meal, but leave nothing over in the troughs to attract the birds. Starve for at least twenty-four hours before killing. Bled by "sticking" in the roof of the mouth, and dry pluck. Grade to uniformity and quality and pack in neat boxes.

Detailed instructions on killing, plucking and grading may be had free from the Publicity and Extension Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

AGRICULTURE DEPT. TO GIVE RADIO TALKS

The Dominion Department of Agriculture will again be on the air each Thursday evening during the forthcoming winter months over the Coast to Coast network of the Canadian Radio Commission. Stations at 5:20 to 5:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, from Montreal over the French network, from 8:20 to 8:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, for the Maritime Provinces, Ontario, Quebec and the Prairie Provinces, and the British Columbia network from Vancouver 9 to 9:10 p.m., Pacific Time. This season the same title for the series of talks will be used, namely, Romance and Dividends in Agriculture. Each talk will be of 15 minutes duration. The season's programme includes a variety of subjects which should be of interest to everyone.

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA
(Organized by the Canadian Social Hygiene Council)

General approval of Dominion control and direction of public health services, has been given by the leaders of four political parties: Liberal, Conservative, Reconstruction and Canadian Commonwealth Federation according to an announcement made today by Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director of the Health League of Canada.

Health League officials today expressed their gratification that the leaders of all four political parties have declared themselves in favor of progressive health measures on a national basis. While no new statement has been received by the Health League from Prime Minister Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, his action last April in calling together the Health Ministers of the Provinces in conference indicates the Premier's attitude in the matter of National Health.

Rt. Hon. Wm. MacKenzie King has made the following statement to the Health League of Canada: "I want to make it quite clear that the Liberal Party has always appreciated the importance of safeguarding the health of the community. In our advocacy of a broad programme of social reform we include a national health policy as one of the basic elements."

Mr. King pointed out that, "it was the Liberal Party in Canada which introduced and brought into operation the existing scheme of national old age pensions, and which advocated and sought to enact a national system of unemployment and health insurance as a supplement to its provisions for old age pensions."

Approval of a co-ordinated national health programme has been received by the Health League of Canada from J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F. Mr. Woodsworth refers to the manifesto of his party, which sets forth in definite language a policy for the nation's health measures, state medicine and preventive medicine.

"The most hearty approval of co-ordinated health programme with the Federal Government offering leadership," Hon. Harry H. Stevens, leader of the Reconstruction Party, wired Dr. Bates today.

In another statement of his stand regarding health, Mr. Stevens said: "I would be prepared to co-operate sympathetically and practically with the great medical authorities of Canada in working out a suitable national health programme."

"Leaders in Parliament have from time to time expressed the view that this is a provincial matter. Never have I been much impressed with such an excuse when a serious national problem of this kind comes forward and I should indeed be very willing to give most favourable consideration to any sane proposal for a national-wide health programme."

Candidates in scores of Federal ridings have forwarded similar statements supporting a national health enterprise. Many have taken the stand that the Health League of Canada ought to promote this extensive work.

WILL WAR

TOUCH US!

We don't believe that there is much chance of America being seriously affected by the war between Italy and Ethiopia. There is no such emotional reaction, so far as we can see, as there was in the beginnings of the Great War, when everybody in America was taking sides vehemently.

If the expected war is confined to a conflict between the Italians and Ethiopians, it is difficult to see how any American interests would be seriously imperiled. All the trade that we have with Ethiopia you could put in your hat. Our exports to Italy have been steadily declining for years and there is no occasion to worry about them.

The real possible danger to America would be another general European war. That is not outside the realm of possibility. It may not come as a direct result of the present exchange of beligerent gestures between Italy and Great Britain, but it is the possibility that makes a study of international relations seem to think timid or later, some incident will set off the fireworks and involve all of the Great Powers in one of our catastrophic conflicts.

The thing that brought us into the last war was the assumption by the belligerent powers of the right to dictate to us where our ships might and might not navigate the free seas, an assumption or prohibition in Germany's declaration of unrestricted submarine warfare. It is conceivable that a situation might develop in which the free passage of American commerce through the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal would be threatened or prohibited by some other nation. It might not take very many incidents, such as the deliberate sinking of American ships, to stir the American people to the point of going to war again.

We hope nothing of the sort will happen. We do not think it is likely to happen. But we must not lose sight of the fact that no nation can remain completely isolated from all the other nations of the world, and that anything which upsets the international situation may easily affect us too.

FIRST
SNOW
Last night there was the smell of snow in the air—the damp, cold, indefinable smell that is different from frost and the autumn rain.
Who can ignore the first snow?
Even though he be of a sort who is commonly indifferent to nature's moods as having no part in his philosophy (or lack of it), is blind to the colors of sunset and the architecture of cumuli, and never knows whether the moon is new or on the wane, he is pretty sure to pay attention to the first falling of the snow.

For a month or more the autumn fires had been consuming grass and flower and tree in a glorious riot of multicolored flames, leaving fields and forest at last a burnt-land of dull browns and ash grays. The country roads had become iron under foot, the naked boughs had creaked in the north winds, and the absence of bird and bee had recalled poignantly the summer that was gone. Then, in a moment all is changed. Down from the leaden clouds in unburied profusion sifts the soft feathery clinging of the snow, until every twig and blackened weed, ice-bound pond and plough-pushed field sink beneath a warm billowy blanket of pearl-gray and blue-white. Once again the world seems kind and comfortable—a friendly place indeed.

If you want to know how friendly ask of those who are accumulating the stuff of future memory—the youngsters. Does not a snow spell snow balling and skating and coasting, not to mention snow-covers and snow-men? Even though it is not though it results in forced labor along the paths leading from the kitchen door to the woodshed, still its virtues far transcend its ills.
Perhaps our most logical reason for thrilling at the first snow is that none of us ever quite grows up. Anyway, it is fortunate that we feel as we do about it, seeing there is a plenty more to follow.

POPPY
DAY

Poignant reminder of those spacious days of glory and grieving, "Poppy Day" once more recurs to prompt the citizens of this country to the duties they have inherited from the past generation. To Canadian youth in this year of grace, the deep-red petals of the Poppy may not carry the same significance they bore to the youth of seventeen years ago. The symbolism of sacrifice with which the Poppy has become charged is something to which the present generation succeeds only through the wistful memories of the aging men who fought their country's battles, who suffered privations, endured long agonies, and finally triumphed amid surroundings carpeted with Poppies.

To wear this humble emblem on Poppy Day is to proclaim that amid the jangling confusion through which this country is striving valiantly to penetrate the hostilities and are nevertheless attuned to a sense of homage due those men whose patriotism inspired 600,000 Canadians to offer themselves for service between 1914 and 1918; of that number more than half of them were from the British Empire. And it is over those graves that the Poppy blows in perennial bloom.

The numbered dead were not strangers. They were young Canadians, filled even as the youth of today is filled, with the joy of living.
So also, were the British and in 1935 bear upon their bodies the marks and scars of war—the disabled ex-service men who suffered disablement on behalf of Canada.

To manifest that proud recognition of their place in the country, to mark that the blood which is due, Poppy Day has been set aside in order that all may join in recalling the Great Sorrow.

The blood-red emblems distributed throughout Canada by the Canadian Legion's vast volunteer organization are the badges of those brave veterans striving to maintain themselves in the Veterans' Shops, administered by the Dominion Government. To purchase a Poppy is a small thing.
For every citizen to do so is a big thing.

Let us all wear a Poppy on Poppy
Day.

KEEP THE FOOT
ON THE GAS

A man who had been an eighteen thousand dollar a year bank note salesman came in the other day. He is now selling drug sundries. He will probably average $2,000 a year.
After he lost his bank note job a year or so ago, he tried selling oil, then tractors, then insurance.

After some conversation about his changing fortunes and the times he said complacently, "When you hire out on a new job nowadays they won't consider who you are and what you have done."
I didn't make any too reasonable reply at the time. But you know how it is. After a fellow considerable has gone something often comes to you which you feel that you ought to have said. Had I known him well enough I ought to have said something like this: "It isn't so very important in the long run that a new employer doesn't consider who you are and what you have done. If YOU don't forget, the employer will soon be reminded in a manner that clicks his cash register, a language he can well understand, and one which he will usually want to encourage in definite form."

A conscientious carpenter who has made beautiful doors for one firm doesn't fret when general conditions force him to look for employment elsewhere. First the new firm won't realize his exceptional worth. He knows that he knows what he knows. He knows that he can do what he can do, anytime, anywhere with good tools and materials. He knows that he can repeat past performance in a manner so that anyone with half an eye can see it.

Remunerations aren't what they once were in any line of human endeavor. But if a man has once been a top-notch man he can be a top-notch man again in some line

Top-notch carpenters and salesmen and leaders of men will not long remain anything but top-notch men in relation to the rest of their fellows, if they let no jolt make them forget who they are and what they have done and do.

If they do not rest on the oars of past achievement and expect too much whether or no they are willing to put forth sufficient effort to duplicate past performance.

When the going is tough and the hill is hard it doesn't pay to let up too much on the gas. You know what the old machine CAN do.

Many Refinements in Ford V-8 Cars for 1936

Ford V-8 cars for 1936, of which details have just been revealed by the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, reveal no radical changes in design but include a number of mechanical refinements and attractive new front-end appearance.

Body lines which strike a new note in conservative streamlining, a new treatment of the interiors and three important refinements in chassis engineering, summarizing the principal improvements. The 90-horsepower V-8 engine, of which more than 2,000,000 are now in operation, is unaltered.

Of the three principal chassis improvements, one—improved steering—is aimed at greater ease and safety of operation. Two others tend to greater comfort. One is the use of new steel wheels, which lessen the unsprung weight and thus provide greater riding comfort. The other is an improved transmission using quiet helical gears—formerly used only in second and high speeds—in all forward speeds and reverse.

A new front-end treatment gives added distinction to the body lines. Fully over the attractive new radiator grille. With its vertical slots and more accentuated "Vee" as well as its smoothly rounded lower edge which blends with the streamlined curve of the inner portion of the hood is longer, extending gracefully, the grille contributes a new note of smartness.

Horns are now recessed in the fenders, back of small round grilles beneath the streamlined headlamps. Louvers are of new design. The welded steel body is low and wide, with flowing rear quarter lines. Finish is a Ford-developed color: Washington blue, gray Vineyard green, Cordoba tan, gunmetal and black, of which the first two are new.

Ten body types are available. These are: De Luxe: Three-window coupe, five-window coupe, roadster with rumble seat, Tudor touring sedan and Fordor touring sedan. Without de luxe equipment: Five-window coupe, Tudor and Fordor. Interiors, especially luxurious in the de luxe types, reveal a distinctly modern treatment. The color motif is a rich gray, with which the taut upholstery fabrics harmonize.

Interiors are of new design to conform to the modern effect of the new gray metallic pyroxylon instrument panel. Safety glass is standard in windshields and all doors and windows.

It is estimated the effort required in steering has been reduced more than 25 per cent through increasing the steering ratio to 17 to 1 from 15 to 1, fitting new roller bearings to the steering arm sector shaft, and grinding and lapping teeth of the worm and sector. Gear shifting is made easier by reducing the length of travel of the shift lever.

The new steel wheels consist of a drawn steel spoke section electrically welded to the rim, forming a single steel unit of exceptional strength. Each wheel is nearly five pounds lighter than the former steel spoke wheels. The wheel is completed by a 12½-inch hub cap with polished stainless steel centre. Tires are again 6.00 by 16 inches, 30 pounds pressure.

The cooling system has been improved and its capacity increased to provide adequate cooling under exceptionally severe conditions.

SYNOPSIS: Ben Furlong, a young but practical oil man and drifter from the Pennsylvania field, drifted into the Texas oil country, broke and looking for work. Finally he fished up at the Durham home where lived an elderly aunt, shortly widowed by the explosion of a powder wagon, and her niece, pretty Betty Durham. Perhaps because of his smile, Betty cooks Ben some food and while he eats he learns the aunt, in town on business, has an oil man, Tiller Maddox, skanking an oil well for her. A short 6-inch bolt worked loose from the rigging and is in the bottom of the well. Work has been suspended for days as the crew "fish" for the bolt and operating funds dwindle away. Ben Furlong offers to give a hand but Maddox objects. Betty insists and overrules Maddox so Furlong then fashions a tool which brings up the bolt. On the order of Betty's aunt Furlong is given a job. Maddox shows his dislike for the new hand, especially because Ben and Betty are so friendly. While the two are in town shopping one evening, Maddox calls upon the aunt, demanding she help his case with Betty or there will be no well. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Did you drop that bolt in the well?" Mrs. Durham bleated, in dismay. "I ain't sayin' I did or I didn't. But remember, if this well ain't a producer, you're blowed up, and it ain't a-goin' to produce till there's a Mrs. Tiller Maddox to see it and to get her share! We bargained that out, long ago. Yes, an' I ain't afraid of you gals' back on our deal, either. You don't dast."

"I'll try again."

"You better do more'n try. I'll give you just one more chance. If she don't come across, I want you to go visit yer folks Saturday evenin', and leave her here. Understand?"

Ben passed his arm around the slim girlish figure and drew it to him.

closer. "Good thing you aren't an heir—me and me with less than a hundred dollars!"

"You behave yourself, or you'll wreck his car," the girl warned him. Maddox carried out his intention. He discharged Furlong on Friday night, explaining that the well was down, and the next morning Ben broke the news to his sweetheart. Betty was indignant. She was so appealing to her aunt, but he refused to permit her. He promised to let her hear from him in a day or so.

stared at the speaker, then she said:

"Tiller Maddox, you're a dirty dog!"

"Say! I've took all the back talk I can stand for one day. You heard me 'You do like I tell you, an' you needn't to get back from your visit till Monday'."

Not until Ben and Betty had finished their shopping and were on their way home did he tell her about the trouble he had had with Maddox that morning.

"He let on he was fooling, but of course he'll fire me the first chance he gets," Furlong predicted.

"Oh, Ben! Why did you do it?"

"You were bound to do it into each other sooner or later. You can't choose a time to get fighting mad; it's as sure as you can do to pick a good footing."

"Aunt Mary won't let him fire you. She doesn't trust him any more than I do."

"Say! What has he got on her?"

The girl did not look up from her driving. She fetched a deep breath as she said: "I'd dearly love to know."

"There's something queer about it. Uncle Joe was a sweet, easy-going man and she rode him with a Spanish bit. She never would let him take me in, when my folks died, only I did all the work. But he sure loved me. When the oil excitement came they rowed and fought for months. Whenever he got an offer she claimed he was trying to give the farm away and threatened to go to law. I told you about that. He stood it as long as he could; then he up and announced that I'd been more of a daughter to him than she'd been a wife and he aimed to give most of his money to me anyhow, and then he made that lease with the Planet people. That's how Maddox came. I think she'd have poisoned me, if she dared, after what uncle said. When he was killed, I supposed of course that she'd throw me out, but she didn't. No use to do it, I suppose, inasmuch as he hadn't left any writing. As a matter of fact, she was better to me than she had ever been. That's what makes me wonder sometimes."

"Wonder what?"

"If he didn't tell Tiller something. Something that makes her scared of him. Sometimes she acts like it's only because of him that she's nice to me. I don't know what I'd do if she sent me away. I haven't got a red cent. There ain't a living soul I could—"

Ben passed his arm around the slim, girlish figure and drew it to him. "That'll be about all for you!" He kissed the cheek next to his and Betty hungrily pressed her face that well comes in this farm'll be worth—I don't know what. Anyhow my heart's set on seeing you get a good home and have everything. How'd you like to live in a fine house in Dallas?"

"What ails you? Are you losing your mind, Aunt Mary?"

"And you can have 'em if you marry Tiller. Marry Furlong and you'll spend the rest of your life over a cook stove."

"How can Tiller give me things like that?"

"I'll give them to you."

After a moment Betty inquired, curiously, "How much will you give?"

It was Mrs. Durham's time to hesitate, her words came with an effort. "I don't know—maybe a quarter interest."

"Humph!" The exclamation was one of scorn.

"There's gratitude for you! Mebbe it's a real big well I'd do better. You—you've got to do it, Betty. The widow cried in distraction. If you don't he'll ruin everything. He said so. If that well don't come in the farm ain't worth—"

"So! That's why you're so generous. Now listen to me. I wouldn't marry Tiller Maddox, not for all the oil in Texas, not if it was to save your life."

"Wait! Don't make up your mind in a hurry. I'm going over to Cousin Anna's."

"When? What for?"

"Right after dinner. You think it over while I'm gone, dearie. I feel like you was my own kin. I want to do right by you and—"

"Rats!" said the girl.

The town lay hot and gasping under the sun. There was no shade out-of-doors, for nothing grew in the streets, not even grass; its cinder yards, its board walls and iron roofs radiated waves of heat like those from a stove.

Late in the afternoon Ben Furlong entered the skating rink, paid his admission at the turnstile, and went through. Here, at least, was a place to sit down out of the sun.

Out of the waiting throng upon the floor shot a figure; it was Ben's friend, the engineer of the Maddox rig. He rolled up to the bench where Furlong sat and collapsed upon it.

"'Whow! It's hard work havin' a good time in this town," he panted. "Landed a job yet?"

"I've got some prospects lined up. What's the matter? You fired, too?"

"Naw! Maddox laid us off for the day. 'Durn Durum brought us in."

"Did Betty come with her?" Ben eagerly inquired.

"The engineer shook his head; a grin spread over his face. "Say, you know how scared Tiller is of nitroglycerine? When we left he was hidin' out in the brush like a quail. The powder wagon came an' he took it on the run."

"Powder wagon? What's a powder wagon don't there?" Ben inquired.

"Why, he aims to shoot the well. He got a permit and the stuff on the ground ready for the men."

"He's crazy if he shoots the well," Furlong declared. "What's he thinkin' of?"

"So I told him. Leave her alone an' she'll blow herself in. I says to him, 'She's coughin' now, an' I bet as many wells has been ruined by that stuff as there is wells that she's been made.'"

"I'm going to see Mrs. Durham," Ben rose, but the other explained.

"She's gone away over Sunday to visit her kinfolks."

"Who's looking after Betty?"

"I dunno, Tiller, I reckon."

Furlong frowned. For a while he listened intently to his companion, then he rose and left the rink. As he well knew, were unsettled, and he did not relish the thought of Betty out there alone in that farmhouse; but even more disturbing was the fact that Maddox proposed to shoot the Durham well. What called the man?

After some indecision Ben decided to warn Betty. It was none of his business to be sure, but a word from her might induce the aunt to go slowly and perhaps save the cost of the well. It would be criminal to leave her in ignorance of the risk, she ran. He tried to hire a car to run him back to the farm, but what few were for hire were out, and it was some time before he could discover a truck that was later going in that direction.

It was considerably after dark when Furlong left. Fortunately, he had to walk the last three miles, so it was late bedtime when he finally arrived at the Durham homestead.

Evidently Betty was asleep; at any rate, the farmhouse windows were dark and Ben wheeled how he could brist awake her without causing alarm. Visitors in the country at this time of night were not common. He decided to call softly from outside her window, so he closed the gate quietly behind him and made his way around the house.

He paused in surprise when he had turned the corner of the building, for the kitchen door was open. A momentary panic swept over him; then he drew a breath of relief for at that moment he heard the girl's muffled voice.

"Who's there?" she cried.

He opened his lips to speak reassuringly, but the sound died in his throat, for inside Betty's room he heard a man's voice, then a strident movement. This was followed by a crash, as if a chair had been overturned, then a scream.

Furlong uttered a shout; he leaped forward. Some marauder had entered the house just ahead of him. Incredible as it seemed he had arrived barely in time.

"Betty!" he yelled. "Betty!" He made for the door beyond.

That throaty clamor from the girl's room, meanwhile, continued. There were hoarse movements, the sounds of a struggle.

Furlong had never been inside the front part of the house, but its plan was simple and he was guided by those shrieks of terror. The door to Betty's room was closed, but it opened when he found the knob. He glimpsed the dim square of a window opposite and glimpsed against it the saw the girl herself, then blackness engulfed him.

The next he knew Betty Durham was holding his head in her lap and splashing water into his face. It struck him as queer that the lamp should be burning when only the fraction of an instant before all had been darkness.

A REAL PLUM PUDDING

Unlike the plum pudding of tradition, which is too rich and heavy fittingly to end a gala dinner, this plum pudding is in the modern style. It's festive enough for the most sumptuous occasion, but it's also a pudding you can make for family consumption, too.

Chef's Plum Pudding

1 package cherry-flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
Dash of salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/4 cup finely chopped raisins
1/4 cup chopped cooked prunes
1/4 cup finely chopped citron
1/4 cup chopped walnut meats
1/4 cup Grape-Nuts

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add salt and spices. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in combined fruits, nuts, and Grape-Nuts. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve with whipped cream, flavored with nutmeg, or with custard sauce. Serves 10.

THOSE "UNUSUAL" DISHES

The good cook, who has learned the effect of new and unusual dishes upon her family and guests is in an enviable position. Her meals are praised and eagerly sought after. She becomes the local "good cook."

Limas With Sausage
1/2 pound sausage
1 medium-sized onion
1 cup cooked, dried Limas
1 cup tomatoes
1/2 teaspoon salt

Here are two unusual dishes made from cooked, dried Lima beans—now available in cans anywhere.

OYSTERS "R" A FALL DISH

That hungry look you see in your husband's eye about this time of year means only one thing—oysters are in season. He is looking forward to many pleasant meals of raws, fries, and stews. But if you want to please him—and fool him, too, you can show him a few new oyster dishes. Here are two oyster dishes particularly appropriate to autumn days.

Pigs in Blankets

24 oysters
12 slices of bacon
8 pieces of toast
Drain and dry oysters. Wrap each oyster in half a slice of bacon and fasten the ends together with a toothpick. Brown very quickly on all sides in a hot frying pan. Arrange three oysters on each piece of toast. Pour a little of the liquid over the toast and serve immediately.

Oyster Bisque

Sprig of parsley
Bit of bay leaf

Salt
Pepper
Drain oysters and chop. Heat slowly to the boiling point and press through coarse sieve. Scald milk with onion, celery, parsley and bay leaf. Melt butter, stir in flour and strain milk into butter-frog mixture. Stir over a low fire or over hot water until mixture thickens. Add the strained oysters and season with salt and pepper to taste. If a minutes.

thinner soup is desired, more milk may be added. Serve with fried croutons or toast sticks.

A FEW HINTS ON COFFEE FOR CAREFUL HOSTESSES

The smart hostess, who enjoys devising new ways to please her guests knows that a most appreciated touch to any evening party is the offer of a choice of coffee. Why? Well, many lovers of coffee must for reasons of health, diet and sleeplessness, avoid caffeine. Perhaps many of your own friends have refused coffee because of this. So when you offer them a choice of coffee, include a caffeine-free coffee. From it they may get the full richness of taste, color, flavor and aroma of the time-honored beverage—without the caffeine.

This modern coffee is made in the usual manner with a heaping tablespoon to one cup of water, whether a percolator or drip-pot is used. It may also be prepared in the old-fashioned way—boiled with an egg beaten in for amber clearness.

Sandwiches, cake and coffee have always been the principal foods for a light lunch. No doubt they will continue to be served for generations to come. However, women who have reputations as hostesses vary their sandwiches and cake so that their luncheons are looked upon as "decidedly different." Nut cakes will be very popular this season. Those made with Brazil nuts certainly will be "different." The following cake is entitled to "DECIDEDLY different."

BRAZIL NUT CAKE

2 cups ground Brazil nuts
6 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
Grind the nuts (1 1/2 cups of shelled nuts or about 1/2 pound) and mix with sugar and salt. Beat egg yolks until foamy and beat in sugar and nut mixture. Beat thoroughly and fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into 3 greased 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. Or pour mixture into a greased 8 inch tube pan or spring form and bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees F., for 20 minutes; raise the temperature to 375 degrees F. for 10 minutes and then decrease heat to 325 degrees F. for 30 minutes.

taught to the tune of a hickory stick, was once sufficient foundation for an education or special career.

The pioneers did much for this country on just such a foundation. However, there was much they didn't do—couldn't do with such an education. As people congested in cities it took more education to plan sewer systems, engineer water works and fight contagious diseases. Yellow fever was not banished by a man with a three R education nor was the Brooklyn bridge built on such training.

In days of the three "R's" businesses were run differently and folks had a different attitude toward them. There wasn't much going on to entertain people or distract their attention. It was a treat just to "go down town and look around." Topics of conversation were limited and more time was given to neighborly discussion of new things seen in the local stores.

Today talk covers many lively subjects. If a merchant wants his goods and service talked about he must set the example and emphasize the good points and popularize them. Trial and error have proven that this can best be done locally to the advantage of both buyer and seller through the medium of the newspaper.

We serve the buyers and sellers of merchandise in Wainwright as a modern, effective information dispensing medium.

The Gag Industry

Condensed from "The Stage" for Reader's Digest

The modern gag industry—inaugurated under the influence of the radio within the past five years, and now brought to a high point of scientific perfection—is the business of providing a new set of jokes every week. No gagman nowadays "thinks up jokes." No man can remember, let alone invent, the necessary quantity. What the gagman does is to collect, classify and provide old jokes; his personal contribution is to keep them sounding topical and fresh. He must be able to guarantee better than one laugh a minute, duly proportioned between snickers, giggles, bellies and the rest.

The technical terminology of the gag business calls a joke that is no good, stinking. One that is possible but undependable is lousy. A joke which gets a satisfactory laugh is terrific. A good hearty laugh all over the air makes a joke very, very tremendous. A joke which is copied or adapted by other broadcasters is a classic of classics.

We have culled our lore from David Freedman, rightly regarded as Number One gagman of America. He pioneered the field. He has worked much in musical comedy—most recently in Life Begins at 8:40—has helped out many a vaudeville act, has written plays and books himself. But his chief triumph has come recently in radio. He has written all of Eddie Cantor's programs, and many of the programs for other headliners. At times he has written five programs a week, the equivalent of two full-length plays in seven days.

The core of his system is a card catalogue. This contains some 10,000 jokes—the choice selection which his family and his permanent research staff have been able, over three years' time, to cull from all available comic books and periodicals in English, French, Spanish, German, Rumanian and Yiddish. The card catalogue contains no jokes which aren't at least terrific. They are classified, indexed and cross-indexed in such a way that the user can lay his hand on a satisfactory joke for any given spot within 90 seconds.

The catalogue is continually being augmented. A permanent staff of three research assistants spend their time, when not actually preparing programs or rehearsing them, reading all procurable comic periodicals; Mrs. Freedman also devotes to this all the time she can spare from caring for four children; and a retired bookdealer spends his full time traveling from city to city, inspecting all humor libraries which he hears of and recommending for or against purchase. Ten new jokes a day from the four research assistants is considered a good average.

The catalogue thus grows by some 3,000 jokes annually. Mr. Freedman estimates that three million jokes have been inspected to provide the 40,000 which constitute his working stock in trade.

The various spots on the program—usually there are four spots in an hour's program—must be selected with careful regard to contrast of mood. Mr. Freedman likes to grade his comedy down from the intellectual through the fantastic to the belly laugh. He believes that he was the first to see the importance of a serious undertone in radio programs. Called an idiotic idea when he urged it in the early Cantor programs, it has since been proved that hick philosophers on the air are terrific. When you go to musical comedy, believes Mr. Freedman, you pay the comedians to impress your best girl; so they are likely to be socially beneath you—bellboys, jaddies, bootblacks. But when you turn on the radio at home it is like inviting guests into your home and you want them to be a little smarter than you, not just clowns. So Mr. Freedman generally hands out a little philosophy—about mother love, for instance.

New jokes are hard to find. Besides, old jokes are generally preferable. The radio listener virtually demands them—according to Mr. Freedman—because he wants to be sure of getting the point promptly and so being able to slap his wife on the back before she nudges him. Classifying these jokes into the basic old jokes of the world is, Mr. Freedman believes, of academic rather than practical interest. He has not got around to it, but he feels sure there are not more than 20.

Perforce, however, he has done a good deal of classifying. There is one stock joke which is the basis for all revue and burlesque blackouts—a classic of all time. That is the one about the farmer with a shotgun in the watermelon patch. Voice: "Day's nobody here but us chickens!" This is, Mr. Freedman assures us, the original sex-triangle joke. You have only to change the three principals of the joke to husband, wife and lover and you have a Broadway blackout for $4.40. So you have, "There's nobody in here but the laundry;" or with a fresh twist, the husband saying "Goodbye, Sam," to the clothes closet as he leaves for Detroit.

Similarly, when a spot on the program is devoted to something topical, it is an old joke with a topical name pinned to it. The one about the boy who saved the dictator's life and, upon being offered any reward he might name, replied: "If you really mean it, don't tell anybody I saved your life!"—that one has done duty for Missouri, Finland and almost every other strong man in Europe. It is now going strong with Hitler.

There is the rhetorical type of joke which gets its laugh from the contrast of highfalutin' with a prosaic reply; the joke which ends in mud. For example: "My kingdom for a horse!—Won't a jockey do?"—Yea, come right over here." This formula is capable of infinite application.

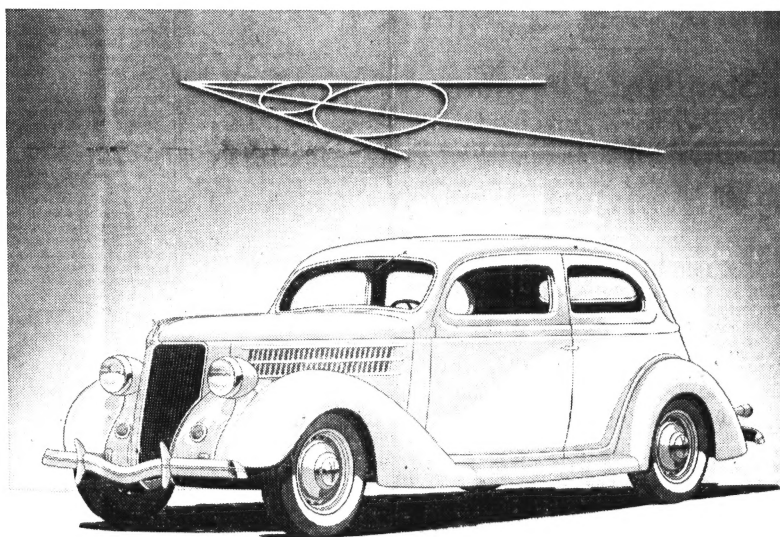

The continuing success of the radio gagman depends not so much on the collection of jokes at his disposal as upon his ability to invent variants. For example, a girl must be provided instantly with an inheritance, and a helpful friend suggests: "Call Bordenia. They advertise Families Supplied." But next week you can have him say: "Call Western Union if you want a boy."

The Quinn joke, which Mr. Freedman's father discovered in germ in a Rumanian funny paper, has been honored with 5000 variants (Mr. Freedman alone created 95 in a single year). You will recall that Mr. Rosenstein boasts of his cousin, Mr. Quinn. Yes, Mr. Quinn. C-o-h-e-n—Cub-winn. It clearly needs some telling, but as Eddie Cantor told it, it swept the country.

The laughs in every radio program are accurately clocked and classified. All important programs are now delivered before a flesh audience, chiefly for the purpose of recording the reaction. Eighty laughs is considered a good average for a serious hour's program—one, for example, that embraces mother love. Mr. Freedman averages 90 to 100, with a record of 120 in half an hour in one of George Givot's Greek Ambassador programs.

Sales of cattle at public yards in Canada during the first 34 weeks of 1935 were 439,335 head as compared with 387,215 for the corresponding period of 1934.

THE MODERN CAR

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made.

Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 4½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermosiphon action is assisted by two cone trilateral water pumps. New style hood louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, foot-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Get complete details at your nearest Ford dealer.
